DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's request, filed on 9/7/2006, for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action (mailed on 6/13/2006) is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

Rejections Withdrawn

2. All rejections made in the last Office Action has been withdrawn in view of applicant's argument filed on 9/7/06 and/or cancellation of claims overcoming the 35 USC 112 rejections.

A new Office Action on the merit follows:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-4, 8-9, 11, 13-14, 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kreckel (5516581).

Kreckel relates to a laminate sheet (20) comprising a long release sheet (26), an adhesive layer (24) in continuous contact and coextensive with the release surface of the long release sheet(figure-7), a base material (22) having a first surface and a second surface, the first surface being opposite to the second surface, the first surface being in continuous contact and coextensive with the adhesive layer opposite to the long release sheet, the base material being of a different material than the adhesive layer (col. 3, line 63 to col. 4, line 16 lists material for layer 20, col. 4, lines 41-50 lists adhesive material), and a protective material (28) provided longitudinally on and in continuous contact with a generally peripheral portion of the second surface of the base material, wherein the peripheral portion corresponds to a portion other than a principally used portion of the adhesive layer (because the protective layer 28 extends only partially).

Figure-7 shows (for claim 2) that a central portion of the adhesive layer in the widthwise direction thereof is the principally used portion of the adhesive layer, while the protective material is provided on both sides of the second surface of the base material in the widthwise direction thereof the protective material extends across the width of the base material 22 and hence, is located along both side edges of the base material).

For claim 3, the protective material is in continuous contact with a generally peripheral portion of the back surface of the long release sheet (because the protective material 28 is in contact as shown in figure-7) wherein the peripheral portion corresponds to a portion other than a principally used portion of the adhesive layer.

Claim 4 is explained hereinabove in section for claim 2.

For claim 8, the protective material has a band like shape and a uniform width (figure-7). Regarding claim 9, an edge of the protective material is adjacent to the principally-used portion (figure-7).

For claim 11, the protective material 28 can be made from the same material as the base material (col. 6, lines 49-53), and because the base can be of 10-250 microns (col. 4, lines 20-22), the protective material would have a thickness of 10-250 microns, which would read on the claimed thickness range of 5-100 microns.

For claims 13-14 and 16, applicant is directed to explanations provided hereinabove.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kreckel.

Kreckel, as discussed above, fails to expressly teach that the laminate sheet is wound into a roll. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide Kreckel's laminate into a roll form because it is well known and conventional in the adhesive art to provide adhesive tapes in a roll form.

Conclusion

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Nasser Ahmad whose telephone number is 571-272-
